ESSO'S OIL PIPE LINE BIGGEST JOB IN 90 YEARS IN MAINE-N. H.

Probably the greatest project in this part of the country since the construction of the Atlantic & St. Lawrence Railroad about 90 years ago is now under way in the building of the Portland-Montreal Esso pipe line. This work which started from Gorham, N. H., about five weeks ago, is averaging nearly a mile a day as it stretches toward Portland. This will be the first crude oil pipe line in New England, there being a short line in Massachusetts carrying gasoline.

The construction from Gorham to South Portland is by the Oklahoma Construction Co. of Dallas, Texas, while all the pumping stations on the pipe line and the line from Gorham to Montreal is being built by the Williams Brothers Corp. of Tulsa, Okla.

This week pipe is being laid through Albany township, where a variety of terrain is encountered. From the lowlands in the vicinity of the Town House to the steep hills, easier travel may be expected nearby. As the route progresses seaward, leaving Oxford County's hills, easier travel may be expected and much better time made.

The route traversed was first decided after a mosaic map was made from photographs taken from a plane flying at 17,000 feet. Field surveyors then laid out the route and the necessary rights of way were secured by expert right of way men. The usual right of way is 35 feet wide.

After a woods crew have cut the larger trees, giant bulldozers level off a space which is about as smooth as a country dirt road so that the heavy trucks may carry pipe and the necessary electric welding equipment the length of the construction line. The ditch is then dug. Where soil conditions permit, a ditching machine is used. In other places power shovels do the work and trenches are blasted through the ledges which are frequently encountered.

The novelty of this type of work in this vicinity has attracted many onlookers, who have invariably been pleased with the courtesy shown by the visiting workmen and those in charge of the project.

ROBERT BATEMAN ELECTED GOULD HISTORY INSTRUCTOR —TRACK COACH—NEXT YEAR

Robert Bateman, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, has been elected to the position of History instructor and track coach at Gould Academy for next year.

Mr. Bateman has had eight years of successful teaching experience in Bar Harbor, where he has built up a very enviable record in the scholastic attainments of his pupils as well as developed a very enthusiastic response in track and cross country. The last two years he has served as Director of the Visual Education Program.

Mr. Bateman will teach Problems of Democracy, Modern History, and Civics, be faculty advisor to the student council and direct the Visual Education work. Photography is his hobby.

ILLINOIS GIRL INJURED AS BICYCLE COLLAPSES

Miss Annette Ball of Glen Ellyn, Ill., suffered painful injuries Sunday afternoon when her bicycle collapsed as she rode down a hill on the Rumford road about four miles from Bethel. She received a broken jaw, broken nose, badly cut tongue and several bad bruises, and was taken to the St. Louis Hospital at Berlin, N. H.

She was a member of an American Youth Hostels Group which left Northfield, Mass., June 26. The cyclists were returning from the Gaspé Peninsula when the accident occurred. Miss Ball is a graduate of the University of Chicago this year.

WEST PARIS NURSE TO WED NEW YORK MAN

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Welch of West Paris announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis, to Raymond Young, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Young and the late John Young, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Welch was graduated from West Paris High school and from Mount Sinai School of Nursing, New York City. At present she is doing private nursing.

Mr. Young received his education in Brooklyn and is employed as Credit Manager of the Continental Bank and Trust Company of New York.

The wedding will place in the early fall.

FORMER BETHEL TEACHER TO MARRY THIS MONTH

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lahti of Kingfield announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elsie Ellen Lahti, to John Spaulding of Caratunk.

Miss Lahti is a graduate of Stanley High School, Kingfield, and Farmington Normal School. She has taught school the past three years, being the popular and successful teacher of the sixth grade of the Bethel Grammar School last year. She is at present employed at the Belmont Hotel, Bar Harbor. Mr. Spaulding is the son of Mrs. Alice Spaulding of Caratunk and is employed by Wilson and Company at Bangor.

The wedding will take place on Aug. 22, and the couple plan to live in Bangor temporarily.

GOULD'S "88-89ERS" HOLD 25TH ANNUAL GET-TOGETHER

The annual reunion of the pupils of Gould Academy during the years 1888 and '89 was held as usual the first Wednesday in August at the Academy, and this was the twenty-fifth annual observance of the "get-together."

After looking over the Academy a visit was made to the new field house under the guidance of Edward Hanson. The party then proceeded to the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. where a picnic lunch was enjoyed by all at tables on the shore of the pond.

The following were present: Miss Frances Carter, Portland; Harry Carter, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Clark, Bolster's Mills and St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clark, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. William F. Eldredge, Rockport, Mass.; Mrs. Rena Merrow Foster, Newton, Mass.; Mrs. William Watson and son, Earle, Gorham, N. H.; Miss Hattie Harris, John Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Skillings, Miss Carrie Wieht, Bethel.

At a short business session at which Fred Clark of Bethel presided reports were rendered from absent members; it was voted to accept the invitation of Mrs. Lindon U. Bartlett to hold the next year's meeting of the get-together at her home; and a vote of thanks was given to Mr. and Mrs. Jordan for their hospitality in opening their cottage at Songo Pond for the gathering.

Old associations were renewed and a general good time was enjoyed by all.

RUMFORD WOMAN BRUISED IN COLLISION SUNDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Thomas Falladeau of Rumford suffered bruises Sunday night when cars driven by Eugene Van Den Kerkhoven of Bethel and Henry Gagnon Rumford collided at Hanover. The Van car was smashed on the left side and the bumper, front wheel and fender of the Gagnon car. Officer John Maguire of Bethel investigated.

THREE HURT SUNDAY NIGHT IN COLLISION AT CHURCH AND R. R. STS.

Donald Deshon of Bryant Pond sustained severe lacerations on his arms, and other bruises, and his wife and daughter suffered lesser similar injuries Sunday night when their car, driven by Mr. Deshon, was in a collision with a car driven by Edward Arsenault of Rumford. The accident took place at the junction of routes 2, 26, and 35, the corner of Church and Railroad Streets in Bethel village. The other occupants of the Rumford car, Alfred Boutte and Jeanette Theberge, were not hurt.

After first aid was administered, the Deshons were taken to the St. Louis Hospital in Dr. Greenleaf's ambulance.

The Deshon girl was thrown through the windshield and all windows in the car were broken. The front of the Arsenault car badly smashed.

Deputy Sheriff Frank A. Hunt investigated the accident.

FARM BUREAU COMMITTEE MEETS TO PLAN PROGRAM

The executive committee of the Oxford County Farm Bureau will meet on Wednesday, Aug. 20, to discuss educational programs to be undertaken in the county next year in cooperation with the Maine Extension Service, according to information received by Richard C. Dolloff, county agent leader in the Extension Service.

International, domestic, and local situations this year make it more important than ever that farm people think clearly and act constructively in planning farm bureau and extension programs for the coming months. Dolloff points out.

Membership in the 14 county farm bureaus of Maine on June 30 was 14,281, comprised of 6,378 men and 7,905 women.

In Oxford County, the June 30 summary shows a membership of 1,171, 502 men and 669 women.

LITTLEHALE GRADUATES AT BAY PATH INSTITUTE

Frank Littlehale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Littlehale of Bethel, was included in the 1941 graduating class of the Bay Path Institute of Commerce, which held its annual public commencement exercises on Saturday afternoon in the Springfield Municipal Auditorium. This class, numbering 270 members, has the distinction of being the first class to graduate from the Bay Path Institute of Commerce, inasmuch as Bay Path Institute became the Bay Path Institute of Commerce on May 31.

Littlehale has been active in the athletic program throughout his course at the Institute, having been a member of the varsity golf team, intramural basketball team, and Bowling League. The varsity golf team, in which he was especially interested, has lost but one game in three seasons.

There will be a health June Wednesday, Aug. 13, from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. at the primary school building. This is for all children living in Bethel, Albany and West Bethel, who are entering school this coming year. Dr. Harry Wilson, assisted by Mrs. Ruth Hopkins, will be the examiners.

Why did the toughest prospectors in the Waswanipi country avoid the Chibougamau Trail? There was gold up there! Yes, but Jules Isadore was up there, too! Six prospectors had found that out. They never returned!

But Garry Finlay did not avoid that trail. He had a big airedale with him . . . and a husky Irishman, and a half breed. It was dangerous going, for Isadore was unscrupulous, but his lovely daughter, Lise, was on their side. Read this thrilling adventure in the timbered hills of the North country—

SERIALLY IN THIS NEWSPAPER

THIS WEEK IN DEFENSE

President Roosevelt sent a special message to Congress saying "we stand, as we did in the closing months of 1918, at the beginning of an upward swing of the whole price structure," and asked authority to set ceiling for prices and rents, to purchase commodities when necessary to assure price stability, and to deal more extensively with excesses in installment credit.

He said the "facts today are frighteningly similar" to the situation in the last war when the whole sale price index increased nearly 140 percent between October, 1918 and June, 1920. In the past 60 days wholesale prices have risen more than five times as fast as during the preceding period since the outbreak of the war in Europe, he said.

"The whole production machinery falters under inflation," he said, and "the unskilled worker, the white-collar worker, the farmer, the small business man and the small investor all find that their dollar buys ever less and less."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced its index of prices, as of July 26, stood at 88.8 percent of the 1926 average, 15 percent above a year ago. Price Administrator Henderson said the crisis in the Far East necessitates a price ceiling on raw materials and may make necessary a change in the prices. He asked dealers and consumers not to pay prices for high grade waste paper above those prevailing July 26, "pending an investigation of the price structure."

Economic Defense

President Roosevelt created an Economic Defense Board consisting of Vice President Wallace, Chairman, seven cabinet members, and such additional members as Mr. Wallace may select. The President said the new Board will formulate the nation's international economic policy, coordinate the economic activities of defense agencies and plan for post-war reconstruction.

Foreign Affairs

The President ordered the freezing of all Japanese credits in the United States and extended the order to Chinese assets to protect China against Japanese use of assets controlled from occupied China. The President also placed the Army and Navy of the Philippine Commonwealth within the command of the armed forces of the United States, and named Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur, former Chief of Staff commanding general.

The State Department protested the dropping of bombs by Japanese planes near the U. S. Gunboat "Tutuila" and announced the incident closed after the Japanese Government promised full investigation and reparation. Acting Secretary Welles denounced Germany for its note to the Mexican Government with regard to the blockade recently issued by President Roosevelt and for the Nazi Government's reported threats of reprisal.

Aid to Russia

Lend-Lease Administrator Hopkins arrived in Moscow to discuss expediting of needed war materials to the Soviet Union and the Russian Military Mission conferred with President Roosevelt and the State Department. Acting Secretary Welles said Lend-Lease aid has not been discussed because the Russian Government can purchase needed supplies with cash.

Tax Anticipation Notes

The Treasury placed on sale at Federal Reserve Banks tax anticipation notes intended to help taxpayers set aside sufficient money to meet increased tax bills of the coming year. The notes are redeemable in cash or as payment for income taxes and bear interest up to 1.92 percent. Secretary Morgenthau, in a letter to all banking institutions, said "It is important that the taxpayers of the nation become aware of the unprecedented taxes they will have to pay next year on this year's income, and they should be encouraged to set aside funds now with which to meet those later payments."

Army

The War Department created five air support commands in order to coordinate the activities of aviation units and ground forces. The Department announced the Signal Corps has developed electrical sensors that will warn of invading aircraft "long before they are actually sighted" but said the Army needs 500 men from the radio engineering field to learn to operate the secret devices.

War Secretary Stimson said 1,000 airplanes and 10,000 Air Corps officers and enlisted men will take part in maneuvers stressing coordination of ground and air strength in the Beauregard, La., area from Sept. 1-30. In the simulated warfare between 50,000 men of the Second and Third Armies, and in the First Army maneuvers to be held in the Carolinas, Nov. 3-30.

Oil

Defense Petroleum Coordinator Ickes recommended 100,000 gasoline filling stations in the following States be closed from 7 P. M. to 7 A. M. every night beginning Sunday, August 3; Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, District of Columbia, and "all marketing areas in or east of the Appalachian mountains in the States of New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia." He appealed for a voluntary one-third cut in consumption and said he hoped closing the stations in Eastern States nightly "plus the voluntary curtailment will put us across."

Priorities

Director of Priorities Stettinius issued an order freezing all stocks of raw silk because of "unsettled conditions in the Far East." Mr. Stettinius announced a new plan to grant blanket preference ratings to projects which must be completed promptly. He issued a limited preference rating to 40 manufacturers of mining machinery and to 75 producers of cranes and hoists needed by defense manufacturing plants.

Agriculture

OPM Director Knudsen told Agriculture Secretary Wickard the OPM will cooperate to meet shortages of farm equipment and machinery now hindering efforts to increase farm production. The Office of Price Administration revised its allocation program to increase storage space for farmers for the current grain harvest by increasing the quantities of steel and zinc for grain bin construction.

Materials

The OPM Production Division formed a defense advisory committee of the pulp and paper products industry and said defense requirements will increase consumption of the industry's products by 2,000,000 tons this year and an additional 2,000,000 tons next year.

OPM announced plans to increase the scrapping of worn-out automobiles by 1,000,000 tons a year and said one car provides enough scrap for a light cannon, and 29 cars, enough for a tank. OPM asked zinc producers to set aside 27 percent of their June production during August for an emergency pool and said the supply of fabricated steel for aircraft manufacture will be tripled before the end of next year.

Labor and Employment

Labor Secretary Perkins reported non-agricultural employment increased by 484,000 during June to reach a new all-time high of 38,799,000, an increase of 3,365,000 since June, 1940, and 1,800,000 more than the June, 1929, record. WPA employment dropped 77,000 and NYA 90,000, he said. OPM Associate Director Hillman asked airplane companies to employ and train women in defense jobs without lowering wages or working standards.

The Navy, War and Commerce Departments jointly proposed the 60,000,000 Americans born in this country but without documentary proof of citizenship apply to State bureaus of vital statistics and similar agencies for "delayed birth certificates" to break the bottleneck by which native-born workers are

THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1941

From the archives of broken peace we are bringing out old words and dusting them off for use again as shining lanterns to lead us through the darkness of another war.

Words like freedom, justice and truth—all of them hard to define, none of them used more frequently than freedom.

You cannot say what freedom is, perhaps, in a single sentence. It is not necessary to define it. It is enough to point to it.

Freedom is a man lifting a gate latch at dusk and sitting for a while on the porch, smoking his pipe, before he goes to bed.

It is the violence of an argument outside an election poll; it is the righteous anger of the pulpits.

It is the warm laughter of a girl on a park bench.

It is the rush of a train over the continent and the unafraid faces of people looking out the windows.

It is all the howdys in the world,
and all the hellos.

It is Westbrook Pegler telling Roosevelt how to raise his children; it is Roosevelt letting them raise themselves.

It is Lindbergh's appealing voice raised above a thousand hisses.

It is Dorothy Thompson asking for war; it is Gen. Hugh S. Johnson asking her to keep quiet.

It is youth trying to remember the words to The Star-Spangled Banner.

It is the sea breaking on wide sands somewhere and the shoulders of a mountain supporting the sky.

It is the air you fill your lungs with and the dirt that is in your garden.

It is a man cursing all cops.

It is the absence of apprehension at the sound of approaching footsteps outside your closed door.

It is your hot resentment of intrigue, the tilt of your chin and the lightening of your lips sometimes.

It is all the things you do and want to keep on doing.

It is all the things you feel and cannot help feeling.

Freedom—it is you.

Portland were Monday afternoon

HEY, LOOK BEHIND YOU!

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

ACTIVITY PICTURES

Picnics are full of gaiety, and you'll want your camera ready to record a complete story of the event. Catch your subjects when they're busily absorbed in some activity.

PICTURES of people outdoors, busy with games, sports, or other activities add human interest appeal to any amateur's snapshot collection. Opportunities for such shots exist throughout the summer months, and the weekends offer a specially good range of picture-taking possibilities.

Most of us plan something special at this time—a trip, a day or two at the beach, or a picnic—and this presents a theme around which the day's pictures can be centered.
If you plan a series of snapshots depicting the events of your holiday, your shots will have continuity, and will tell a connected, interesting story. Of course, you can't foresee all the possibilities because many picture chances occur quite unexpectedly. It is helpful, however, to jot down a brief outline covering the high spots.

If you plan a picnic, for example, you'll want a picture of Tom, Dick or Harry as he packs the basket and outfitting accessories in the car.
On arriving at the picnic grounds, don't overlook shots of the girls setting the table for lunch—and then a general view of everyone
"packing it away."

You'll want a "close-up" of Mary tossing a tasty sandwich. Jack tossing with an obstinate cap on his olive hat, and many others that callers of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrews.

Mrs. Omar P. Brown and granddaughter, Beattie Austin, of Freeport, with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis of Ashburnham, Mass., were guests Wednesday and Thursday of last week of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Davis.

Sunday callers at A. M. Andrews' were Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Titus of add human interest to your picture story. And, of course, there are the after-lunch games, pictures of Dick napping under a large tree, and finally a parting shot of loading the car to go home.

In planning your pictures—and in making them, too—there are several points to keep in mind. First, make each shot simple—don't clutter it up with too many details.
Second, see that each snapshot portrays a definite bit of activity to assure a complete story of each particular good time.

A third point is nicely illustrated in this accompanying photograph.
Half the fun of a picnic is the informality. Don't have your subjects looking at the camera; instead capture them when they are engaged in some activity. Watch also for "natural frames," such as the tree in the picture above. This helps hold the picture together, adds depth, and makes a pleasing arrangement.

There's a lot of pleasure, and genuine satisfaction in making a planned picture record of your outings. Instead of random "pot shots," you will have a well organized, connected picture story. Try the idea and see if it doesn't pay big dividends in better snapshots the kind you'll be proud to show to your friends and relatives.

The U. S. W. V. of the Norway Camp have invited the Post and Unit to their picnic in Dearborn's Grove, Bryant Pond, Sunday. It is hoped that some of the members will find time to drop in, in spite of their own field day activities.

There was a large crowd at the meeting at the beach Aug. 1, followed by a picnic and social time. The Unit voted to purchase a box of 100 Sick and Sympathy cards for the Secretary's use. The cards are to have the Auxiliary emblem on them. The first order of dish cloths are sold so eleven dozen more will be ordered at once.

her, also Mrs. Mann.

A great deal of interest has been shown lately in the Legion's Junior Baseball. Sunday South Paris played Brewer for the State Championship in Togus. South Paris lost by a score of 3-2 in a very close game.
In the semi-finals Saturday they won over Waterville 11-0. Commander Barrett and Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Cummings were privileged to attend.

The Juniors will meet August 13
at the Finnish picnic grounds,

Over 200 campers and guests attended the dedication of a new camp July 31st, at Tent City, Roxbury Pond, donated by Napoleon Ouellette Post, American Legion.
The president of this Community Boys' Camp, Emil Belanger, and vice-president, Tom McMasters, acting as guides escorted members of the Legion and Auxiliary through all the camps.

"Tent City" was made possible by a group of business and professional men from Rumford and vicinity. There are nine boys in each camp with a captain in charge.

Around a huge council fire, 63 boys from 8 to 14 years of age sat in a semi-circle and entertained the guests with songs, readings, and guitar selections. Commander Poulin thanked the boys and the counselors for the entertainment.
President Lovina Irish expressed her appreciation of this excellent vacation project, open to all worthy boys willing to obey the camp

Why do people brush their teeth?

You might say that people brush their teeth to keep them clean—or to make them sparkle—or or because their dentists told them to.

But, few people brushed their teeth until advertising told them it was important.

In more ways than most people realize, advertising has promoted health and happiness in the course selling its wares.

And at the same time, by increasing business, it has helped make more jobs—so more people can enjoy the things it offers for sale.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Six men traveled the Chibougamau trail in the wilds of northern Canada. Six men died. They were reported drowned in the rapids. Murders around the camp fires expressed other things. Garry Finlay, whose brother Bob was one of the six; Red Malone and Blaise, a half-breed guide, in the guise of surveyors, arrive to investigate the deaths. Finlay had received an anonymous letter declaring that the men were murdered. There is a suspicion that Jules Isadore, big fur man, has made an important gold strike in the Waswanipi country and will stop at nothing to keep prospectors out.

CHAPTER II—The inhabitants are in terror of Isadore and his right-hand man, Tete-Blanche.

CHAPTER III

For a hundred miles, after passing through Lake Shabogama, the Nottaway thrashed itself to foam in rock-scarred reaches of broken water or narrowed to slide past timbered hills as it raced off the Height-of-Land. On the afternoon of the second day from the railroad the Peterboro was checked by the spruce poles of the crew at the head of the famous long sault. A mile of churning water, through much of which the canoe must be snubbed behind the current, roared below them.

The bow man nodded. "Channel follow middle riviere, den swing left!" he shouted. "Allons! We go!" Down the flume into the white chaos leaped the Peterboro. On either side boulders pushed up their granite bulk where the river burst to fling spray high in air. Eddies and cross-currents sucked at her keel. Knife-edged ledges that would rip out her bottom snarled beneath the broken water. One mistake and canoe and men would be sucked into the maw of the thundering river to be spewed up and cast ashore, battered and broken, miles below.

Drenched to the bone, battling all ways for the safety of the black water, the crew ran the Peterboro to the first bend.

"We're through the worst of it!" panted Red, as they snubbed the boat to study the river below.

"Good channel ahead!"

As he spoke the whip-lash crack of rifles broke through the din of the rapids. The wind from a bullet flicked Finlay's cheek while a splinter whirled away from the gunwale at Malone's knee.

"We're ambushed!" cried Red. "They're on that point! Come on!" Finlay caught the blue haze of smokeless powder hanging in the alders of the right shore. The canoe was trapped!

Blaise lifted his pole with a shout. "Let her run!"

Like a galloping horse the Peterboro plunged down the narrow channel. Again and again rifles exploded on the shore. Suddenly the bowman sagged to his knees while his pole slipped from his limp fingers.

"Blaise is hit!" cried the desperate Finlay. "Get him, Red, before he goes overboard! I'll hold her!"

The kneeling Brassard moved his head from side to side as if to clear his brain as Red caught him and eased him to the floor of the canoe. The blue lips in the gray face framed the words: "They got us!" Then he fell unconscious.

As if it were a chip, a cross-current snatched the canoe from the control of the straining sternman, blinded by bursting spray, and whirled her. Straddling Blaise's body Malone battled to reach the boat back into the channel. As he thrust with all his magnificent power his spine slowly bowed into an arch, but he saved his way. The boat did not swing. The pole splintered in his hands. As he lurched back to escape a headlong plunge into the boiling water.

Again the rifle roared on the shore. Garry felt a sting like the stab of a hot iron as his right leg went limp. "They got me!" he muttered, savagely clenching his teeth. He managed to brace himself and follow Red's lead.

Finlay prayed that he might hold on until they reached the bend.

The shots from the distant point grew fainter. The range was long and they were going wide. Finlay's leg was numb but, propped against the gunwale, it still wobbled under him. "Shooting men out of canoes," he panted, "even on the Nottaway! Worse than I guessed! Did Batoche pass us in the night on the lake or is it someone else?" He wondered if they had lost Blaise, loyal old Blaise, hunched there in the bow.

The Peterboro rounded the bend and plunged on in the better going of the left shore. The worst of the long sault was behind them.

"Where was he hit?" called Garry, fearful of the answer.

"In the head!" came the sorrowful reply.

Garry's leg suddenly went limp. In spite of his efforts, he sagged to his knees. "They got me in the leg, Red," he called. "We've got to land!"

Malone flashed back an alarmed look and headed for an eddy inshore. Shortly the canoe was beached and Red ran to his friend.

"You hit hard, Garry?"

"Through the thigh! No big arteries, I guess! Let's get Blaise ashore!"

With fear in their hearts they examined Blaise's blood-caked head.

"Glory be!" cried the giant as he traced the course of the bullet.

"They only creased him!"

"Get some water, Red! His pulse is good. If he hadn't got a fracture, he'll be as right as rain in a few days. He's tough."

When they had washed and bandaged Brassard's head, Red inspected Garry's leg. "Straight through the thigh muscles clean as a whistle! Not an artery touched. That was a high-powered small bore. Pain any?"

"Not much! It's just numb and weak."

Shortly Red had his two wounded friends on a spread blanket.

Working like the mouse he was, Malone soon had cargo and canoe through the alders and back in the bush. The hidden camp was now safe from searching eyes on the opposite shore. Then Garry and Red held a council of war.

"What's your guess, Red?"

There was an ugly glimmer in the blue eyes as they shifted from Garry's bandaged leg to the still unconscious Blaise. "I don't think Batoche and the rest who started for Chibougamau."

"Well, as they've started the rough stuff," said Red, finishing the oiling of the action of his .45 and shoving it into the shoulder holster strapped under his left arm beneath his shirt, "three lads I know are going to throw a little rough stuff themselves."

"They won't work in the open, Red. It will all be Injun stuff, under cover, with no surviving witnesses. They're blocking the Chibougamau Trail but they don't intend to hang for it."

"And I don't intend they shall, Garry!" growled Red.

Garry loved Red's weakness for a fight and his berserk courage when he was in one, but he cautioned: "Remember we're a peaceable survey party interested in certain other matters on the side. We can't make the first move."

"Sure, boss, but while we're running that compass survey of Waswanipi, I'm going to make a personal survey of Mr. Jules Isadore. If I find what I think I will, it'll be a sweet job."

"And a dangerous one, Red."

"Uh-huh! And a dangerous one!" grunted Malone.

In the morning Blaise was conscious. Six days of rest and careful nursing put him on his feet and gave the clean flesh wound in Garry's leg a chance to heal. In the meantime Malone had swum the river below the rapids and found in the mud at the foot of the old Indian portage the tracks of two men and freshly broken brush where a canoe had been cached. At the head of the carry, footprints indicated that the men had come downstream. Batoche and Flambeau must have passed their camp on the river in the night, ambushed them, and thinking that they had somehow run the rapids, gone on, searching for their supper fire.

"Now, Blaise, what do you think of your friends who wanted to give you a job?" demanded Red.

Blaise grimaced as he fingered his bandaged head. "I think if I ambushed canoe in dose rapids, I make better job. At less dan hunder yard dey start to fire at tree men who got to stand up and make good target. Dey shot eight-ten time and get two hit."

"They shot straight enough to satisfy me," said Finlay. "I thought we'd lost you when you went down. If they'd wiped us out, there'd have been three more reported accidentally drowned and no proof to the contrary."

The half-breed's eyes blazed with such fury that his friends gaped in surprise. "We head for plenty trouble!" he bit off between his teeth. "Mebbe we navare come back! Who know? But wan I'ing you promise Blaise Brassard! You give dis Batoche to me! I take him in dese han'—so!"

Brassard's thick fingers reached into the air and clamped shut, as if on a throat.

"He's yours, Blaise! But he's only a tool," said Garry. "What puzzles me is his boss. I can't make out Isadore's game. He must have brains to make such a success of the fur business and yet he's riding straight for a fall with the authorities."

"He's got a rich placer strike, somewhere, and to avoid a stampede of prospectors won't register it until he's skimmed off the cream," insisted Red.

"Wal, now we feel better, we go have look at M'sieu Isadore," grunted Blaise. He drew a villainous looking skinning knife from its sheath and tested its edge with a thick thumb, as he said: "Somebody goin' to pay for my sore head, for sure!"

"I'm glad I'm not the fellow, you old wolverine!" laughed Garry. "When you take the war path, there's blood on the moon."

CHAPTER IV

Ten days later the Peterboro was approaching the head of Matagami Lake, flanked by black spruce ridges which rolled away to the horizon. Finlay had intended to stop at the Hudson's Bay post which his map showed was located somewhere on its irregular north shore. But, as it was hidden in a deep bay, the survey party had passed the fur post.

"Do we go on up the inlet to this Lake Olga," asked Red, "or turn back to hunt for the Hudson's Bay outfit?"

"We must be pretty close to the thoroughfare, now," said Garry.

amining his map. "We've lost ten days already. According to the map the post is thirty miles back of us behind a bunch of islands. We'll keep going."

"Good! Waswanipi and Isadore, or bust! is my motto," laughed Red. "Was that the flash of a paddle up there where the lake suddenly narrows?" demanded Garry.

The three men stopped paddling to focus their eyes on the distant water.

"Canoe leave de inlet for sure!" announced Blaise, his black eyes narrowing to slits as he watched.

"We make talk wid dem Injun. Mebbe dey know somet'ing."

As the approaching canoe neared the Peterboro Garry said: "It's a birchbark, as you said, Blaise. We'll stop for a talk. Ask them if they ever saw any of the white men who have passed through here bound for Chibougamau."

"Ah-hah! I ask, al-so, if dey see Batoche and Flambeau on dere way to Waswanipi."

"And see if you can draw them out on this Tete-Blanche. He seems to be the bad boy in this neck of woods."

The birchbark in the distance moved in an uncertain course toward the Peterboro.

"What's the matter with those birds?" demanded Red. "Never saw Indians travel in a zig-zag like that. They're always too saving of their elbow grease."

"Nor I," agreed the curious Finlay. "They're yawing all over the lake."

As he paddled Blaise was slowly nodding his black head, at the air-dale who lay at his knees. "Flame," he said with a chuckle, "w'at you think de matter wid dese Injuns comin' in dat canoe, eh?"

The air-dale looked into Brassard's swart face with its twinkling eyes.

"If you keep your mou' shut, I tell you, Flame," laughed Blaise. "Now don't say notin' to Garry and Red. Dose Injuns comin' in dat canoe bin up to have a look at M'sieu Isadore and he give dem somet'in dat come in a bottle."

"By golly! You're right, Blaise!" Garry threw back from the bow. "It looks like Isadore's fire-water."

The canoes were soon within hailing distance and Blaise called: "Kekway!" The Montagnais and Cree salutation.

He was answered by a chorus of "Kekways" from the birchbark, in which sat two men, a squaw and a child. The eyes of the men were bloodshot and swollen. As the canoes stopped alongside of each other Blaise began a rapid questioning. Shortly he turned a face black with anger and disgust and announced to the curious Garry and Red:

"Dey are Matagami hunter but dey go to Isadore to trade dere winter hunt for fur, instead of de Hudson Bay, becuz he sell dem whiskey. But only half dey trade for flour, sugar and tea dey will need. Dey rest dey trade for whiskey."

Garry looked at Red and the giant's eyes glittered with anger. "So that's the way he got rich!" stormed Malone. "Cheating poor devils like these! Look at that girl—hardly eighteen and plastered! That crook'll do time for this!"

The muscles of Finlay's face tightened as he asked: "Did they see any of the men who went through bound for Chibougamau?"

"No," answered Blaise, "dey see no white man pass tru de lake last two year."

Brassard talked rapidly for some time while the Montagnais grew excited, often interrupting him.

"What is it?" demanded Garry. "Dey say dere is moch talk at Waswanipi. Dere is trouble between Chief Wabistan and a shaman by name of Kinebik. Dis Kinebik is te'en of Tete-Blanche. Chief Wabistan fight wid Tete-Blanche at the trade ovair whiskey he give to Injun. Dey say dat de Injun line de whiskey and are scare of Tete-Blanche. He is ver' bad fallar. Dey are scare of de big bird from de south."

"Big bird from the south?"

"Ah-hah! It come tra de sky from de south, each summer. Dey are ver' moch scare of it."

"Airplane, eh? So he has a plane come from the south every summer? That, Red, is the way he brings in his whiskey."

"Sure as you live, boss! Have these people ever seen the plane, Blaise?"

"No, but oders have and dey tell strange story."

"Ask them if Batoche, with the scarred face, and Flambeau have reached Isadore's post."

Blaise put the question and after a lengthy answer, from the talkative Montagnais, replied: "Dey say dat Batoche and Flambeau reach Waswanipi w'ile dey trade de fur. Wan night, Batoche, he get drunk, and he say: 'Tree man wid dog leave de steel for Chibougamau Trail, but de Long Sault of de Nottaway swallow dem. Batoche he say he saw de big wood canoe of white man all stove up below rapid and wan drown man on shore."

Blaise grinned widely as he continued: "But dis Montagnais, here in de bow, his name is Mahigan, de wolf, say dat we are tree men with dog in wooden canoe, and wan wid bullet mark on hees head, and he ask me if we run de Long Sault. I say we did, for sure, and are live man, al-so. Den he say dat Batoche is ver' damn liar. I tell him dat Batoche is worse dan liar. He is dead man if I evair put my hand on him. Mahigan say dere is too many man at Isadore for tree man to fight. We better go home."

"What was your answer?" demanded Garry.

"I say dat we hear dat Waswanipi is ver' fine lake and Isadore ver' fine man and we go take a look at dem bot'."

"Okay!" laughed Garry. "Well, let's go!"

With much handshaking with the drunken Montagnais and giggling from the girl the two canoes parted.

The Faith of a Queen

Steadfast in the faith of her forefathers, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands stands amid the bomb-shattered ruins of the Dutch Church where Hollanders in London have worshipped for centuries. Mainly on religious grounds, the Queen's government has never recognized the Soviets, yet she recently took her place beside the other Allies in welcoming Russia as a fellow-fighter against the one great menace—Nazi Germany. With her is her son-in-law, Prince Bernhard, himself a German by birth, who has just been visiting the United States and telling Americans of the part Hollanders are playing in the Allied struggle for freedom.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Curtis of Framingham, Mass., who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Curtis, returned home the last of the week.

Clarence Weston has made some gain during the past week although yet very ill. His mother remains in Portland near him.

Mrs. Belle Hudon of Portland has been a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Doughty.

Rev. and Mrs. Felix Mayblom arrived home Saturday from a two weeks visit with her parents, Mr.

and Mrs. V. V. Sunderlin, of West Barnstable, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Mann were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Verner Smith at their camp at Locke Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Lovell Chase and son, Sewell, of Pittsfield, Mass., Miss Helen A. Chase of Weymouth, Mass., Dr. and Mrs. Harold F. Chase and son, Billy, of Detroit, Mich., are spending two weeks at Charles Curtis' camp at West Sumner.

Onward Rebekah Lodge, No. 20, their families, West Paris Lodge, No. 15, I. O. O. F., and their families will hold their annual picnic Aug. 17, at Papoose Pond, Watford. Bring lunch. Soft ball at 11 o'clock, horseshoe pitching and other sports.

WEST BETHEL UNION CHAPEL
Don Fife, Minister
Who said that "opportunity" only knocks but once? There are many avenues that you and I travel along each day which are full to overflowing with "opportunities." So many times we step on them without even seeing them. What are these opportunities? Worshipers at the West Bethel Union Chapel will discover them as they follow the theme: "Highways of Opportunity" on Sunday morning, Aug. 10, at 11 o'clock. Why not join us in our worship hour?

In the evening at 7:30 our topic of consideration will be one that pertains to the life of each one of us. How often do you take stock of your life's resources. How often do you check up on the returns you get from each day of living? How often do you look at the road map that your life follows? These items will be "on the stand" Sunday evening as we follow the theme: "Taking Time to Tune In."

Which family will have the largest representation in church on Aug. 17 at the 11 o'clock worship service? This is our Family Rally Sunday, and you and your entire family are urged to come and worship together. You will be inspired as you and yours worship as one. It will mean a lot to you. Recognition of the family with the largest representation will be made.
Remember: Vacation Church School the third week in August. Register your children now!
On Aug. 11 the Young People's Society of the church are planning a special outing.

SUMMER SALE AND HOBBY SHOW

The annual display of useful gifts aprons of new design, and home cooked food will be on sale at Garland Chapel on the afternoon of Thursday, August 14. A table with gifts and prices of interest to children will be featured. The home-made candy will be up to the usual standard. Tea will be served during the afternoon.

A new feature of this occasion is a hobby display in the large dining room. Many local hobbyists will exhibit and interesting collections from other towns are promised. This show is not competitive and no awards will be made. A small admission fee will be charged.

The committee believes that collections and handicraft are worthwhile to all and hope this opportunity will do much to stimulate a wholesome interest. All exhibits are welcome.

If any adult or child has a collection or one or more objects of handwork that they are proud of they are urged to bring it for display. Remember if you are interested others will be. All collections and objects should be plainly marked with owner's or maker's name.

AQUILLA MONTROSE CHASE

The death of Aquilla Montrose Chase occurred at his home on Summit Road, Bryant Pond, Sunday afternoon after an illness of six years. Known as A. Mont Chase, he was for many years a prominent citizen of his native town, serving as selectman and member of the school committee, also an Justice of the Peace.

Mr. Chase was born in Woodstock, June 22, 1854, the son of Alden and Lucy Cole Chase. The family moved to Paris when he was five years old where his father served as Register of Deeds for 10 years, and his education was received in that town and at Kent's Hill.

He married Miss Anna Faulkner of Turner, who passed away several years ago. To them were born four sons: Roy, who died in boyhood; Francis, also deceased; Ralph of Rumford; and Alden of Bryant Pond. A niece, Miss Ethel Ford, had cared for him the past five years. He is also survived by three grandsons, Faulkner, Gordon and Stephen Chase, all of Bryant Pond, and several nieces and nephews.

In 1876 he established the printing business in the store at Bryant Pond, both of which are now carried on by his son, Alden Chase.

He was a charter member and past chancellor of Fraternal Lodge, K. of P., and had held office in the Grand Lodge, an was a past master of Jefferson Lodge, F. & A. M. He was an attendant of the Baptist Church.

Funeral services were held in the Baptist Church Wednesday afternoon at 4:30. Rev. James MacKillop officiating. Burial was in the family lot in Lakeside Cemetery.
